Anniversaries are a special time. They are a time to reflect and to celebrate. And the 30th anniversary of the National High School Hall of Fame is a reason to celebrate – to celebrate what is good about high school sports and activity programs in the United States.

The National Federation of State High School Associations (NFHS) started the National High School Hall of Fame in 1982 to honor those individuals whose achievements and contributions have been extraordinary, and through the first 30 classes we have been privileged to honor 398 special people – athletes, coaches, officials, administrators, those in the performing arts, as well as individuals in the media and sports medicine fields.

While the National High School Hall of Fame celebrates the accomplishments of individuals, high school sports is about individuals working together for the betterment of the team, their school and their community. These inductees have not only enjoyed significant achievements in their respective activity, but by their actions in life, they have made a difference in the lives of others. Throughout my years of involvement in this prestigious event, I have listened to some of the most gifted athletes in the history of high school sports talk about how their achievements would not have been possible without the help of their parents, teammates, coaches and others in the school.

High school sports is a privilege, and it is a privilege like none other in the world. No other country has this framework of high school sports opportunities within the school system – where sports and other activities such as speech, debate and music truly are an extension of the classroom. It is on the playing fields and courts, and in the band and debate rooms, where young people gain valuable lessons such as teamwork, self-confidence, hard work, sportsmanship and self-discipline that will impact them positively throughout their lives. These valuable life lessons are not available through out-of-school activities; they are what make high school sports in the United States special and unique.

Of the 139 athletes who have been inducted into the Hall of Fame through the first 30 classes, many of these individuals excelled at the collegiate and professional levels. But as I’ve listened to these former high school athletes over the years, most of them realize that the most significant period of their lives was high school. This was where the groundwork was laid, where their coaches spent hours and hours helping them to grow and improve, both as athletes and as individuals. As Keith Jackson, former high school athlete from Arkansas and star tight end in the National Football League, said in 2001 when he delivered the speech on behalf of the class, “There is no time like high school, no time like high school.”

Truly, there is no time like high school, and on behalf of the NFHS and its 51 member associations across the country, we salute the 398 individuals who have been chosen for this prestigious honor of induction into the National High School Hall of Fame and many others who will be so honored in the years to come.

Robert B. Gardner
NFHS Executive Director
The National High School Hall of Fame celebrates its 30th anniversary this year, and this special commemorative program contains photographs and biographical sketches on the 398 members of the Hall of Fame through the 2012 class.

The National High School Sports Hall of Fame was started in 1982 to honor high school athletes, coaches, officials, administrators and others for their extraordinary achievements in high school sports. Beginning with the 2003 class, a major change occurred with the inclusion of individuals in the performing arts, and the name was changed to the National High School Hall of Fame. Through the first 30 years, 139 athletes have been inducted, along with 135 coaches, 59 contest officials, 44 administrators, nine in performing arts, and 12 others who have contributed to high school athletics in other ways. As you will see in the pages that follow, some of the true legends of sport in this country are members of this Hall of Fame.

The first three induction ceremonies (1982, 1983, 1984) were held in conjunction with the National Athletic Directors Conference. In 1986, the ceremony was shifted to the NFHS annual Summer Meeting and has been held at that time ever since. Because of this shift, no ceremony was held in 1985. A complete listing of the sites of all 30 ceremonies is contained in this program on the inside back cover. At the 27 ceremonies that have been held at the NFHS Summer Meeting (1986-2012), state association personnel have served as presiders. Mo Kelley of Iowa was the emcee for the first eight years (1986-93), and the following individuals have served two-year terms as presiders: Mildred Ball, Indiana (1994-95); Randy Allen, Wisconsin (1996-97); Rick Strunk, North Carolina (1998-99); Sheryl Solberg, North Dakota (2000-01); Nate Hampton, Michigan (2002-03); Mike Wallmark, Oregon (2004-05); Que Tucker, North Carolina (2006-07); Mike Plunkett, Oklahoma (2008-09); and Robert Zayas, New Mexico (2010-11). A major change with the induction ceremony occurred in 1995 in Portland, Oregon, with the implementation of a full-scale video production by Colortech Video Productions (now Allegro Media) of Kansas City.

The National High School Hall of Fame is administered through the National Federation of State High School Associations (NFHS), which is headquartered in Indianapolis. A listing of all members of the Hall of Fame is displayed in the foyer of the NFHS building, along with plaques of the current class. Plaques of previous Hall of Fame members are on display in the various state association offices around the country.

Members of the National High School Hall of Fame are approved annually through a two-level selection process, involving a screening committee composed of active high school administrators, coaches, officials and state association administrators, and a final selection committee composed of highly respected athletic, education and business leaders around the nation.

Membership in the National High School Hall of Fame is the highest honor an individual associated with high school sports can receive.

We hope you enjoy looking back at the first 30 years of the National High School Hall of Fame as much as we’ve enjoyed bringing it to you.

Much of the credit for the Hall of Fame goes to the two previous NFHS executive directors – Brice Durbin and Bob Kanaby, both of whom are now members of the Hall of Fame – as well as Bob Gardner, current NFHS executive director.

ATHLETES

DANNY AINGE
Oregon, 1992

Ainge played football, basketball and baseball at Eugene (Oregon) North High School and was equally successful in each. In his junior football season, Ainge was named all-league, all-state and Parade all-America as a wide receiver and defensive back. In baseball, Ainge played shortstop and hit .402, .448 and .500 in his three seasons. In his eventual professional sport, basketball, Ainge led his teams to the Oregon state championship in 1976 and 1977 with a combined record of 55-1. His basketball honors were numerous, including McDonald’s high school all-America. Ainge averaged more than 20 points per game at Brigham Young University and played and coached in the National Basketball Association.

ALAN AMECHE
Wisconsin, 1986

Nicknamed the “The Horse” at Bradford High School in Kenosha, Wisconsin. Ameche twice was named most valuable player in the Big 8 Conference in the sport of football. Ameche also excelled in track and field, as he won the state championship in the shot put in 1950. Ameche went to the University of Wisconsin to continue his football career, and in 1954, he was awarded the Heisman Trophy.

TERRY BAKER
Oregon, 2006

A three-sport athlete at Portland (Oregon) Jefferson High School, Baker was best known for his work on the football field. As quarterback and tailback, he led his teams to two Oregon School Activities Association state championships while compiling a 23-0 record in his last two years. In baseball, he was a four-year letterman who led the Democrats to the 1959 state title as an all-state pitcher. He went on to play football at Oregon State University, where he won the Maxwell Award and was the first Heisman Trophy winner west of the Mississippi River in 1962.

JOHNNY BENCH
Oklahoma, 1986

Bench, who is remembered as the best all-around catcher in professional baseball history, started for both his high school baseball and basketball teams. In 1964, he led his Binger (Oklahoma) High School to the state baseball championship, and helped the basketball team to a runner-up finish the following year. Bench earned all-state honors in both sports, and was honorable-mention all-America in basketball. He then went on to a 15-year career with the Cincinnati Reds, where he was named rookie of the year in 1968, and was a World Series MVP in 1976.

LARRY BIRD
Indiana, 1995

Bird was one of the top basketball players in the state of Indiana and the nation in his senior season at French Lick (Indiana) Springs Valley High School. He scored 764 points in 25 games for a 30.6 average with 516 rebounds and 107 assists. He scored 353 points for a 16.0 average as a junior for an overall high school career average of 22.9. Bird went on to have amazing careers at Indiana State University, where he was voted college player of the year as a senior, and also with the Boston Celtics, where he was selected NBA rookie of the year in 1980.

JIMMY BOND
Texas, 1990

Bond led Pampa (Texas) High School to two state basketball championships in three years and a 78-2 record. In his junior and senior seasons, Bond averaged 21.4 points per game while helping his teams to a 56-0 record and two Class 4A state championships. He was named first team all-state both years, and in 1954, he played in the Texas High School Coaches North-South game and the High School All-America game in Murray, Kentucky.

BILL BRADLEY
Missouri, 1983

Considered by most as the finest high school basketball player in Missouri history, Bradley established the state career scoring record (3,068), including 1,068 his senior year while playing at Crystal City High School. Bradley pumped in 20 or more points in 89 of his 112 high school games and scored more than 30 points on 21 occasions. Besides his brilliant athletic achievements, Bradley was an excellent scholar and student leader. He had a stellar NBA career with the New York Knicks and was a United States Senator from New Jersey.

BILLY BROWN
Louisiana, 1990

While at Baker (Louisiana) High School, Brown dominated the high school track scene, winning 12 state championship medals in three years. As a sophomore and junior, he won the 100-yard dash, broad jump, high jump, and the hop-step-and-jump, setting state records in the broad jump and high jump. As a senior, he won the 100, 220, broad jump and hop-step-and-jump. As a 17-year-old junior, Brown was the youngest member of the U.S. Track and Field team at the 1936 Summer Olympics in Berlin.
JACKIE BRUMMER
New York, 2008

Brummer was the most accomplished female gymnast in New York state history. At Sweet Home High School in Amherst, New York, Brummer won the all-around title four consecutive years from 1979 to 1982. She also won the vault three times, uneven bars twice and balance beam three times. At Arizona State University, Brummer won the NCAA championship in uneven bars in 1984 and was NCAA balance beam and all-around champion in 1986. Brummer is a member of the Screen Actors Guild and has appeared in several TV commercials, on the TV show “Moonlighting” and was a dancer in the movie, “The Purple People Eater.”

QUINN BUCKNER
Illinois, 1989

Buckner is one of only two persons to win championships at every level of play — high school, college, Olympics and professional. In high school football, Buckner was all-state as a defensive back and helped Dolton (Illinois) Thornridge High School to a 10-0 record and a state championship. On the basketball court, he was a three-year starter and led his team to two state championships. He was a four-year basketball starter at Indiana University and helped the Hoosiers to the 1976 NCAA Championship. He played in the NBA for 10 years, including three Super Bowl titles.

BILLY BYE
Minnesota, 2009

Bye is perhaps the most prolific and versatile high school athlete in Minnesota history. In four years at Thief River Falls High School and two years at Anoka High School (students in grades 7-12 were eligible for state competition), Bye earned 21 letters in six sports: ice hockey, golf, football, basketball, baseball, and track and field. On a spring day in his senior season, Bye won the district golf championship in the morning, played on the championship baseball team in the afternoon and qualified for regional competition in five track and field events in the evening. Bye played football at the University of Minnesota in the late 1940s and was the team’s leading scorer all four seasons.

EARL CAMPBELL
Texas, 1994

Campbell became only the third running back in the large-school classification in Texas state history to surpass 2,000 yards rushing with 2,036 yards on 309 carries and 28 touchdowns. He led the Tyler (Texas) John Tyler High School Lions to 15 consecutive victories, the state championship and was a part of perhaps the best team in Texas history in 1973. In five postseason victories en route to the state title, he rushed for 852 yards and scored 11 touchdowns, including a 221-yard, three-touchdown effort against Plano. He won the Heisman Trophy at the University of Texas in 1977 and was inducted into the Pro Football Hall of Fame after a 10-year career with the Houston Oilers.

CHANDRA CHEESEBOROUGH
Florida, 1987

While attending Jacksonville (Florida) Ribault High School, Cheeseborough set national records in the 100-yard dash (10.3) and 220-yard dash (23.3). She competed in the Pan American Games in 1975 as a high school sophomore and placed sixth in the 100-meter dash at the 1976 Olympics in Montreal following her junior year in high school.

MICHAEL CARTER
Texas, 2010

Carter owns the longest-standing boys track record in the NFHS National High School Sports Record Book — a 77-0 shot put toss in 1979 during his senior season at Thomas Jefferson High School in Dallas, Texas. Later that year, Carter reached 81-3½ at an out-of-season meet that does not count for official high school records. In 2004, USA Track and Field rated that effort as the 16th-top moment in U.S. track and field history. At Southern Methodist University, Carter won three NCAA outdoor shot put championships. He also was a silver medalist in the shot put at the 1984 Olympics in Los Angeles. Carter also enjoyed a nine-year career with the San Francisco 49ers that included three Super Bowl titles.

JACKIE BRUMMER
New York, 2008

A three-sport star (football, swimming and track) at Plainfield (New Jersey) High School, Campbell left school long enough to win the silver medal in the decathlon at the 1952 Summer Olympics in Helsinki, Finland, at only 17 years of age. That same year, Campbell also scored 23 touchdowns as a fullback on the undefeated Plainfield football team, won the high and low hurdles and the high jump at the state track meet, and won state swimming titles in the freestyle and freestyle relay.

EARL “DUTCH” CLARK
Colorado, 1995

Clark was one of the best athletes in Colorado history, earning 16 letters in four sports at Pueblo (Colorado) Central High School from 1923 to 1926. In football, he set career (298 points) and season (157 points) scoring records that still stand today. In basketball, he led Pueblo Central to the 1926 state championship and a second-place finish in a national tournament in Chicago. In track, he set school and league records in the shot put and hurdles, and also was a standout performer in baseball.
DAVID CLYDE
Texas, 1999

Clyde was perhaps the most dominating pitcher in high school baseball history during his days at Houston Westchester High School from 1970 to 1973. Amazingly, Clyde’s name still appears nine times in the National High School Sports Record Book—39 years after his high school career. His 842 strikeouts and 29 shutouts still remain the top career marks in high school baseball history. Clyde compiled a 53-13 record at Westchester, including an 18-0 mark as a senior with an 0.18 earned-run average. He played eight years professionally with the Texas Rangers and Cleveland Indians.

CRIS COLLINSWORTH
Florida, 1996

Collinsworth was a two-time all-state and one-time all-Southern quarterback at Titusville (Florida) Astronaut High School. Following his senior season, he was chosen to four national all-American teams, and he was a senior with an 0.18 earned-run average. He played professionally with the Cincinnati Bengals and is now a TV commentator.

BART CONNER
Illinois, 1986

Conner, who won the Junior Olympic boys gymnastics all-around title at age 14, won two state all-around titles at Niles West High School in Skokie, Illinois (1974, 1975). As a senior, he was named to the United States Pan American team. Conner helped the University of Oklahoma win two national titles and was a three-time member of the United States Olympic gymnastics team. He helped the U.S. team to the gold medal in 1984.

NOLAN CROMWELL
Kansas, 1991

Before an all-pro career with the Los Angeles Rams, Cromwell led the Ransom (Kansas) High School football program to a 34-2 record in four years, won all-league honors twice was named all-state and prep All-American as a senior quarterback and defensive back. In two years at the Class 1A school (84 enrollment), Cromwell passed for 1,438 yards, rushed for 936 yards, scored 92 points, threw 19 touchdown passes and averaged 45.6 yards per punt. He was also a standout track athlete and basketball player at Ransom. He played collegiately at the University of Kansas.

CURLEY CULP
Illinois, 1992

While at Yuma (Arizona) High School, Culp won state heavyweight wrestling titles in 1963 and 1964, finishing with a 15-0 record in the latter year. He was named all-state both years as well. At the same time, he was beginning a stellar football career, receiving all-state honors on the gridiron in 1963 and 1964. Off the field, Culp graduated with a 3.1 GPA, and was 30th in a class of 238 students. Culp later went on to play professional football, and was an American Football League all-star and a member of the Kansas City Chiefs squad that won Super Bowl IV in 1970. He was a five-time all-pro and was the National Football League’s outstanding defensive player of the year in 1975.

GENE DAVIS
Ohio, 1991

In the 1954 Ohio state track meet, Davis won the long jump, 220-yard dash and 180-yard hurdles and finished fourth in the 100-yard dash to single-handedly lead Barberton High School to the state title. His individual point total was more than any other team. He also was second-team all-Ohio in football and scored 15 touchdowns as a junior and 14 as a senior. Davis, who was a standout track athlete at Ohio State University, won gold medals in the 400-meter hurdles at both the 1956 and 1960 Olympics, and he also was a member of the 1960 mile relay team that won a gold medal.

DENISE CURRY
California, 1991

Curry played five sports at Davis (California) High School, but she dominated the basketball court, scoring 1,798 points in her career, including 806 her senior year. Curry’s teams won three consecutive Delta League titles, and she was the league’s leading scorer and rebounder each season. When she wasn’t playing basketball, Curry participated in field hockey, softball, track and volleyball. She had a 36-7 record in her final two years as a pitcher on the softball team. She was a four-year starter and three-time all-American in basketball at UCLA.
LEN DAWSON
Ohio, 1988

Dawson was named MVP of his football team at Alliance (Ohio) High School, and was also named outstanding Ohio back of the year by the International News Service. This three-sport athlete set school records in football and in basketball, and was the first athlete in 13 years to be named first-team all-state in both sports during the same year. Dawson went on to enjoy a football career at Purdue and played 19 successful seasons as a professional quarterback for the Kansas City Chiefs.

TY DETMER
Texas, 2005

A five-sport letterman at Southwest High School in San Antonio, Texas, Detmer became known for his football prowess as a quarterback. He passed for 8,005 yards in his career, including 3,551 as a junior. For his career, he completed 506 of 910 passes and 71 touchdowns. He earned All-America and Texas Player of the Year honors. He went on to star at Brigham Young University, setting 59 NCAA records and winning the 1990 Heisman Trophy as a junior. Detmer had a 14-year NFL career with six different teams. His best season was 1996 with the Philadelphia Eagles, when he threw for 2,911 yards and 15 touchdowns.

TERRY DISCHINGER
Indiana, 1995

Dischinger scored 1,455 points in three years of basketball play at Terre Haute (Indiana) Garfield High School. He was team MVP twice, all-Western Indiana three years, captain of the prestigious 1958 Indiana all-star team that played Kentucky in the annual series between the two states, and won the Wabash Valley Tournament Sportsmanship Award. In football, Dischinger was a two-time all-state end, as well as all-Western Indiana Conference and all-Wabash Valley. At Purdue University, Dischinger led the Big Ten Conference in scoring three consecutive years and played in the NBA nine years.

PAT DONOVAN
Montana, 1994

Though football eventually became his sport of choice, Donovan excelled in three sports at Helena (Montana) High School. In addition to earning all-state and all-America honors in football, Donovan made headlines in basketball and track. He led his basketball team to the state championship game in his final two seasons, winning the 1971 title and finishing second in 1970. He was a unanimous selection to the all-tournament team both seasons. In track, he won six first-place medals at state track meets, including the shot-put title three times and the discus in his junior and senior seasons. Donovan played in three Super Bowls as a member of the Dallas Cowboys.

CLYDE DUNCAN
Iowa, 2007

The most dominant high school track and field athlete in Iowa history, Duncan won the 100, 220 and 440 state titles in each of his three years of competition at Des Moines (Iowa) North High School. His nine individual titles are the most in the history of Iowa track. When he graduated, he held the state record in all three events. At the Drake Relays, Duncan won the 100-yard dash all three years, twice setting event records. Duncan went on to compete at Texas Southern University, where he ran on relay teams that set world records.

DWIGHT “DIKE” EDDLEMAN
Illinois, 1983

Perhaps the most gifted all-around athlete in prep sports history, Eddleman starred in football, basketball, and track and field at Centralia (Illinois) High School (1939-42).

Before earning a silver medal in the high jump at the 1948 Summer Olympics in London, Eddleman was a three-time high school state champion in the event (1940-42). His 2,702 points in basketball led Centralia to three state tournament berths and to the 1942 Illinois state title.

TERESA EDWARDS
Georgia, 2002

Teresa Edwards is the only athlete — male or female — to compete in five Olympic Games. The basketball player starred at Cairo (Georgia) High School and later led the University of Georgia to two NCAA Final Fours, earning all-America honors her junior and senior seasons. Competing in the 1984, 1988, 1992, 1996 and 2000 Summer Olympics, Edwards won four gold medals and one bronze medal.

JEANNE EGGART HELFER
Washington, 1994

Helfer was a five-sport participant at Walla Walla (Washington) High School in the mid-1970s, and her greatest accomplishments came in the sports of track and basketball. In track, she was state champion in the javelin and was one of the top javelin throwers in the country. In basketball, she led her teams to a 56-6 three-year record and to three trips to the state tournament. Helfer, whose name was Jeanne Eggart at that time, set the following state tournament basketball records: most points in a game, 47; highest average, 27.0; field goals in one game, 19; free throws in one game, 16; and assists in one game, 7.
SEAN ELLIOTT
Arizona, 2005

Elliott was one of the top high school basketball players in Arizona history. As a senior at Cholla High School in Tucson in 1984-85, Elliott averaged 31.3 points per game and helped his team to the state semifinals. He was a two-time selection to the Arizona Super All-State team and was Arizona high school player of the year in 1985. Elliott was named to four different all-American teams. After playing at Arizona for four seasons, he was the school’s leading scorer with 2,555 points. He was a two-time, first-team all-American and National Player of the Year in 1988-89. Elliott had a successful 12-year professional career, mostly with the San Antonio Spurs, scoring nearly 10,000 points.

JANET EVANS
California, 2010

Evans is arguably the greatest long-distance swimmer in U.S. high school history. After setting two national records at El Dorado High School in Placentia, California, Evans competed in three Olympics, winning four gold medals. At the 1988 Games in Seoul, she won gold in the 400-meter freestyle, setting a world record that stood for 18 years. She also held the 1,500-meter freestyle world record for 19 years, and the 800-meter freestyle world mark set in 1989 was not broken until the Beijing Olympics in 2008. Evans finished her career at the 1996 Olympics in Atlanta, where she handed the torch to Muhammad Ali to light the cauldron. At the end of her competitive career, Evans held seven world records, five Olympic medals and 45 U.S. national titles.

CHRIS EVERT
Florida, 1992

Before Evert turned professional and became the most dominant women’s tennis player in history, she had an outstanding high school career at Fort Lauderdale (Florida) St. Thomas Aquinas High School. Evert won district and state singles and doubles titles three consecutive years from 1970 to 1972, compiling a 43-2 record. She was undefeated in her junior and senior seasons with a combined 30-0 record.

HEATHER FARR
Arizona, 1999

During the late 1970s and early 1980s, Heather Farr dominated amateur golf in the state of Arizona. She won three consecutive Arizona Interscholastic Association state tournaments from 1979 to 1981 while playing at Phoenix Xavier College Preparatory. She took her game of golf to Arizona State University where she was a three-time all-American. In 1985, Farr joined the Ladies Professional Golf Association and played four years before being diagnosed with breast cancer in 1989 at age 24. She fought valiantly for 4½ years before her death in 1993 at age 28.

SUZY FAVOR HAMILTON
Wisconsin, 2010

Favor-Hamilton is one of the greatest distance runners in U.S. history. At Stevens Point (Wisconsin) High School, she won four state cross country championships. On the track, she won the 1,600-meter state championship four consecutive years. She also claimed titles in the 800-meter run, 1,600-meter relay and 3,200-meter relay. At the University of Wisconsin, she won nine NCAA titles and was named Big Ten Athlete of the Decade (1990s). After graduating from Wisconsin in 1991, she made three Olympic teams and was ranked No. 1 in the United States five times. In 2000, she was ranked No. 1 in the world with a 1,500-meter time of 3:57.40 and was named USA Track and Field Distance Runner of the Year.

JOE FERGUSON
Louisiana, 1986

Seventeen years after football star Joe Ferguson graduated from Shreveport (Louisiana) High School, his name still appeared in the National High School Sports Record Book eight times. The star quarterback helped his team win three straight district titles as well as the 1968 state crown. He also excelled in track, as he was an all-state high jumper. As a University of Arkansas Razorback, Ferguson was the 1971 Southeastern Conference offensive player of the year before going on to a professional career.

DAN GABLE
Iowa, 1984

This future Olympian accumulated a 64-0 record at Waterloo (Iowa) West High School and was a three-time Iowa high school state wrestling champion (1964-66). He won on to Iowa State University, where he became a three-time all-American, three-time Big Eight Conference champion and a two-time NCAA champion. He was undefeated throughout high school and college before losing his final collegiate match.

PAUL GIEL
Minnesota, 1998

Giel was a three-sport standout at Winona (Minnesota) Senior High School. He was a letterman in football, basketball and baseball, and earned all-state honors in both football and baseball. Later, Giel played football for the University of Minnesota where he was runner-up for the Heisman Trophy. Giel continued his athletic career in professional baseball, playing for the New York Giants, Pittsburgh Pirates and Minnesota Twins.
JOHN GODINA
Wyoming, 2010

Godina was a two-sport star at Cheyenne Central High School. In track and field, he won three state discus titles and two state shot put titles. In football, Godina was a two-time all-state selection as an offensive guard and defensive lineman. At UCLA, Godina was an 11-time NCAA track and field All-American and won two NCAA discus titles and one outdoor shot put title. His NCAA shot put record of 72.2 still stands today. Godina won the silver medal in the shot put at the 1996 Olympic Games and was bronze medalist in 2000. He is a three-time World outdoor shot put champion and a two-time Jesse Owens Award winner as the outstanding American track and field athlete.

HAROLD E. “RED” GRANGE
Illinois, 1984

The “Galloping Ghost” earned 16 letters in four different sports at Wheaton (Illinois) High School during his prep days. Grange averaged five touchdowns a game even though he was a more talented basketball player and track star at the time. Grange changed his athletic concentration to football at the University of Illinois before playing in the American Football League, which was formed around his football success.

ARCHIE GRIFFIN
Ohio, 1996

As a senior running back at Columbus (Ohio) Eastmoor High School, Griffin rushed for 1,737 yards and scored 170 points in 10 games, including 29 touchdowns. He helped his team to a 9-1 record, including the Columbus City League championship in 1971. In the Columbus league title game against Columbus Linden McKinley, Griffin rushed for 267 yards on 31 carries. He also rushed for more than 1,000 yards as a junior. During her career at Arvada (Colorado) West High School, McHugh became one of the state’s all-time top multi-sport stars for her exploits in volleyball, basketball and track. She participated on four state championship teams - two in track, one in basketball and one in volleyball. Volleyball was truly McHugh’s forte, earning all-conference, all-state and Colorado player of the year honors as a junior and senior. In basketball, McHugh led her team to the 1978 state championship, scoring 28 points and pulling down 20 rebounds in the title game.

Kevin McReynolds
Arkansas, 2011

McReynolds led his baseball team at Sylvan High School in Sherwood, Arkansas, to the Arkansas Activities Association Class AA state championship in 1978. He was selected the tournament’s most valuable player (MVP) and was named Arkansas High School Baseball Player of the Year. McReynolds batted .634 as a senior and had a 16-1 career pitching record. He followed up his high school career at the University of Arkansas where he earned all-conference and All-American honors. McReynolds then played 12 years in the major leagues with the San Diego Padres, New York Mets and Kansas City Royals. He finished third in the National League MVP voting in 1988.

Debbie Meyer
California, 2004

Meyer is considered one of the top female swimmers in United States history based on her performance as a high school athlete in the 1968 Olympics in Mexico City. At the age of 16, Meyer was the first swimmer to win three individual gold medals, capturing the 200-, 400- and 800-meter freestyles. From 1967 to 1971, Meyer broke 20 world records, 24 American records and won 19 national championships. She won the AAU’s Sullivan Award in 1968 and was swimmer of the year by Swimmer’s World three times. She was inducted into the International Swimming Hall of Fame in 1977.

Ann Meyers
California, 1995

At La Habra (California) Sonora High School, Meyers competed in track, basketball, softball, badminton, field hockey and tennis, and earned 13 MVP awards in high school sports. In four years of basketball competition, she led her teams to an 80-5 record while averaging 20 points, nine rebounds, eight assists and five steals per game. Because opportunities in athletics for women were limited in the early 1970s, Meyers participated on boys teams on several occasions, including boys high school basketball. She played four years at UCLA and was a member of the 1976 U.S. Olympic basketball team.

Cheryl Miller
California, 1990

In four years of high school basketball at Riverside (California) Polytechnic High School, Miller scored 3,446 points and pulled down 1,620 rebounds. Miller was the first female high school basketball player to score 100 points in a game after a 105-point game in 1982. Her 672 rebounds during the 1981-82 school year still ranks second all-time. Miller was a three-time national player of the year at the University of Southern California and helped the Trojans to two NCAA titles. She is a member of the Naismith Basketball Hall of Fame.

Ralph Miller
Kansas, 1989

At Chanute (Kansas) High School in the late 1930s, Miller earned 11 letters in football, basketball and track, and he also competed in golf and tennis. In football and basketball, Miller was all-conference and all-state three times. He once scored six touchdowns in a football game, and as a sophomore, he led Chanute to the state basketball title by scoring 83 points in four tournament games. Miller was a highly successful college basketball coach for many years.
BILLY MILLS
South Dakota/Kansas, 1990

An Oglala Sioux Indian from the Pine Ridge Reservation in South Dakota, Mills rewrote the record book in the mile run while competing for the Haskell Institute in Lawrence, Kansas. As a junior, Mills ran a 4:26.2 mile, which was one of the fastest times in the U.S. As a senior in 1957, Mills ran a 4:23.3 and a 4:22.8 to break the immortal Glenn Cunningham’s state record. Mills’ greatest fame may have come when he pulled one of the biggest upsets in Olympic history in 1964 by winning the 10,000-meter run.

DANA MIROBALLI
Illinois, 2009

No Illinois athlete dominated the sports of cross country and track and field like Dana Miroballi did at Prospect Heights MacArthur Junior High School and Wheeling High School in the 1980s. Miroballi won five consecutive state cross country titles, with the first coming as an eighth-grader at Prospect Heights. On the track, Miroballi won four consecutive 3,200-meter run titles, and she also claimed the 1,600-meter run championships as a junior and senior. Overall, she won 10 state championships as a high school student and two others as an eighth-grader competing against high school students. She later was a standout track and cross country athlete at Indiana University.

SIDNEY MONCRIEF
Arkansas, 1992

Before he went on to stardom at the University of Arkansas and in the NBA, Moncrief was a high school basketball standout at Little Rock (Arkansas) Hall High School. Moncrief was selected all-conference and all-state during his junior and senior seasons and led his team to runner-up finishes in the state tournament both seasons.

Kenny Monday
Oklahoma, 2011

Monday was a four-time state champion and never lost a match while wrestling at Booker T. Washington High School in Tulsa, Oklahoma. Monday finished with a 140-0-1 record and won Oklahoma Secondary School Activities Association titles at 108, 115, 135 and 141 pounds from 1977 to 1980. He went on to wrestle at Oklahoma State University where he was a three-time All-American. In his senior year in 1984, he won a national championship at 150 pounds. Monday would go on to an impressive career at the national level, winning an Olympic gold medal in 1988 and a silver medal in the 1992 Games. He is a member of the National Wrestling Hall of Fame.

Rick Mount
Indiana, 1986

Mount, winner of the coveted Mr. Basketball Award in Indiana in 1966, was the first high school athlete to appear on the cover of Sports Illustrated. He earned all-state and all-America honors three times and scored 2,595 points during his high school career at Lebanon (Indiana) High School. Mount went to Purdue University where he was an all-American, and then played professional basketball in the American Basketball Association.

Kim Mulkey
Louisiana, 1986

Mulkey was a member of six championship teams – four at Hammond (Louisiana) High School and two at Louisiana Tech University. This all-American standout posted 4,075 points in high school, making her the nation’s top all-time scorer in five girls basketball at the time. Mulkey played on the 1984 United States Olympic women’s basketball team before becoming an assistant coach at Louisiana Tech University. She currently is head women’s basketball coach at Baylor University.

Bronko Nagurski
Minnesota, 1989

Before playing with the Chicago Bears, Nagurski was considered the best football player Minnesota had ever produced after a stellar career in the 1920s at International Falls (Minnesota) High School. Though there are no high school records on Nagurski, he later went on to be an all-American tackle for the University of Minnesota and was named all-NFL three times. The impact of Nagurski on International Falls was aptly demonstrated in 1941 when the school selected its nickname of “Broncos.”

Jack Nicklaus
Ohio, 1984

Considered to be one of the best professional golfers of all time, Nicklaus captained the Columbus (Ohio) Upper Arlington High School golf team and led it to 70-1-1 dual-meet record. The team had three undefeated seasons and one state championship. Since then, Nicklaus has won every major championship, including six Masters titles, five PGA championships, four United States Open tournaments and three British Open titles.
CINDY NOBLE
Ohio, 1986

Noble led both her Frankfort (Ohio) Adena High School basketball and volleyball teams to Ohio state titles. As a senior, Noble was named the Ohio athlete of the year. She then went on to be an all-American basketball player at the University of Tennessee. Noble played on the 1984 United States Olympic basketball team, and was a standout international basketball player in Italy and Japan.

AL OERTER
New York, 1987

One of the most enduring and successful amateur athletes of all time, Oerter got his start at Floral Park (New York) Sewanhaka High School, where he set a national high school record in the discus that stood for six years. While in high school, Oerter won four winter track shot put championships and four spring track shot put and discus championships. His record toss in 1954 was measured at 184 2/3. Oerter later became the only athlete to win a gold medal at four successive Olympiads.

MERLIN OLSEN
Utah, 1987

At Logan (Utah) High School, Olsen was named all-region and all-state in football, and also competed in basketball, swimming, track and riflery. He sang with the choral group, was on the school’s debate team and served as a student body officer. He received the Rotary Award as an outstanding student, the Jack Parson Award as the outstanding athlete of Cache Valley and was named to The Sporting News all-America prep football team in 1958. He later was a consensus all-American and Outland Trophy winner in 1961 at Utah State, and then played 15 years with the Los Angeles Rams.

BILLY OWENS
Pennsylvania, 2011

Owens led the boys basketball team at Carlisle High School to four consecutive Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic Association Class 4-A state championships from 1985 to 1988 while recording a 118-11 record. He scored 53 points in the 1988 state championship game and finished as the state’s No. 2 all-time scorer with 3,298 points. He is now third all-time. He scored a school record in the discus that stood for six years. While in high school, Oerter won four winter track shot put championships and four spring track shot put and discus championships. His record toss in 1954 was measured at 184 2/3. Oerter later became the only athlete to win a gold medal at four successive Olympiads.

JESSE OWENS
Ohio, 1983

Before his gold medal exploits at the 1936 Summer Olympics in Berlin, Owens’ high school track and field accomplishments also ranked among the best ever. While at Cleveland (Ohio) East Technical High School, he won nine state track titles and established national records in three events – the 100-yard dash (9.4), 220-yard dash (20.7), and long jump (24-11 1/2). He earned three consecutive state long jump titles (1931-33) and highlighted his prep career by winning the 100, 220 and long jump at the National Interscholastic Championships in Chicago.

JIM PLUNKETT
California, 2007

Plunkett was an outstanding three-sport athlete at James Lick High School in San Jose, California in the 1960s. In football, he led James Lick to 8-1 and 9-0 records his final two years, the best marks in school history. In his senior season, he passed for 1,200 yards and 17 touchdowns to help his team win the league title. He also played baseball and was undefeated as a senior in wrestling. He then won the 1970 Heisman Trophy at Stanford University. He went on to play in the NFL for the New England Patriots and Oakland Raiders and won Super Bowls in 1981 and 1984 with the Raiders.

LATAUNYA POLLARD
Indiana, 2005

One of the most dominating players in Indiana girls basketball history, Pollard led her Roosevelt High School (East Chicago) team to a 92-2 record and two state titles. In the 1977 state tournament, Pollard scored 54 points in the two sessions, the most ever in Indiana history. Miss Basketball in Indiana her senior year, Pollard went on to be a McDonald’s all-American and was named one of Indiana’s 50 Greatest Basketball Players, one of only two females to receive the honor. She went on to play at Long Beach (California) State University, and then played professionally in Italy for eight years.
WILLIE RICHARDSON
Mississippi, 2002

Richardson was an all-pro wide receiver for the Baltimore Colts and Miami Dolphins during a 10-year career in the National Football League. Richardson, however, starred at quarterback at Greenville (Mississippi) Coleman High School, leading Coleman to back-to-back state championships. He was also a three-time state champion in track, running the 440- and 880-yard runs.

MEL RENFRO
Oregon, 1995

Renfro was an outstanding two-sport star (football, track) at Portland (Oregon) Jefferson High School (1957-60), before his illustrious career with the Dallas Cowboys. Renfro helped the Jefferson football teams win 34 consecutive games, including two state championships and one runner-up finish. He set the Portland Interscholastic League single-game scoring record of 38 points and his season total of 242 points is also a PIL record. In track, Renfro set state records in the long jump (24-1) and low hurdles (18.9) and scored 31 points himself to help Jefferson to the 1960 track title.

STEVE PREFONTAINE
Oregon, 2000

Prefontaine, who was one of the nation’s most dominating track and cross country runners, broke the four-minute mile mark on nine occasions and set 14 American track records. He won two Oregon state cross country championships, as well as three state track championships. Prefontaine was named the Oregon high school athlete of the year in 1969, and continued his running career at the University of Oregon. Tragically killed in an automobile accident at age 24, his life story was told in two movies.

OSCAR ROBERTSON
Indiana, 1983

One of basketball’s all-time greats, Robertson is considered by many to be one of the most gifted guards and premier all-around players in the game. He helped Indianapolis (Indiana) Crispus Attucks High School win back-to-back state championships and 62 of 63 games during his final two seasons. Robertson averaged 24 points during his career and had a 62-point outing. Robertson was three-time player of the year at the University of Cincinnati (1958-60), and he played in the NBA for 14 years with Cincinnati and Milwaukee.

JOE ROMIG
Colorado, 1990

Romig is one of the best two-sport athletes in Colorado history, gaining headlines as a lineman in football and as a heavyweight wrestler for Denver (Colorado) Lakewood High School. He was an all-state selection in football in his junior and senior seasons (1957, 1958). Following the football seasons in each of those years, Romig was the state heavyweight wrestling champion. Athletics was not his only area of excellence in high school, as Romig was valedictorian of his senior class in 1958.

JIM RYUN
Kansas, 1983

Ryun, one of the most sensational middle-distance runners in track and field history, became the first high school runner to break the four-minute barrier in the mile. He still owns the national interscholastic record of 3:58.3, which he set his senior year at Wichita (Kansas) East High School while winning the 1965 state championship. A standout collegiate runner at Kansas University, Ryun competed in three Summer Olympic Games (1964, 1968 and 1972).

JOHN SAUNDERS
Ohio, 1994

In four years of high school track competition at Cincinnati (Ohio) Glendale High School, Saunders won 10 individual titles, including the 120-yard high hurdles all four years. In addition to winning four high hurdles titles from 1935 to 1938, Saunders won three 100-yard dash championships, with a best of 10.1; one 220-yard low hurdles title; and the long jump title in 1938. Saunders’ 22-6¾ effort in the long jump shattered the state record and the mark remained in the books for 36 years until it was bettered in 1974.

JACKIE ROBINSON
California, 1993

Robinson, who is perhaps best known as the first African-American to play Major League Baseball, also was a four-sport athlete in both high school and college. In track, he and his brother led Pasadena John Muir High School to the 1936 California Interscholastic Federation (CIF) state championship. Robinson also won the 1936 CIF-Southern Section title in the long jump. He was an all-America football player and NCAA long jump champion at UCLA.

ROY ROBINSON

In basketball, his teams won five state championships and had a 62-game winning streak, while his baseball teams won seven state titles and had a 35-game winning streak. Bagonzi’s basketball teams finished second three additional times and had 20 consecutive winning seasons. On five occasions, Bagonzi won state championships in two sports in the same school year.

TOM BARRINGER
Pennsylvania, 1982

In 23 years at Lawrence Park High School (1965-65) and Erie (Pennsylvania) Iroquois High School (1966-77), Barringer compiled an outstanding lifetime basketball coaching mark of 433-132 (.766), which included 17 Erie Country championships and six Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic Association district titles. In averaging nearly 19 wins per season, Barringer directed 11 squads to more than 20 victories, including a 24-1 record at Iroquois during the 1968-69 season. Perhaps more impressive, however, was his strong commitment to young people and his enthusiasm for the game that spearheaded a program designed to teach values that would serve throughout life.

WRIGHT BAZEMORE
Georgia, 1988

At Valdosta (Georgia) High School, Bazemore posted a football career coaching record of 290-43-6 (.855) and had 15 state championships to accompany it. His teams were ranked No. 1 in the nation three separate times. He also coached the basketball team to one state title and to five second-place finishes. Her Safford volleyball teams won an amazing 21 state championships, which is No. 2 all-time in the National High School Sports Record Book. Bellamy’s teams won 13 consecutive state volleyball titles from 1968 to 1980, and among her 501 victories were four winning streaks in excess of 50 matches. As girls track coach, Bellamy’s teams won four state championships and she was named Arizona track coach of the year twice.

LEWIE BENITZ
Wisconsin, 2007

Benitz has had success in his 40 years as wrestling coach at Wisconsin Rapids (Wisconsin) Lincoln High School that most coaches only dream of. Benitz retired in 2008 with 18 state championships. His overall record of 712-70-2 ranks seventh on the all-time list. Nine of Benitz’s teams posted undefeated seasons on the way to claiming 31 regional titles, 29 sectional championships and 31 Wisconsin Valley Conference titles. For seven consecutive years, his teams were ranked in the top 25 nationally.

IRVING BLACK
Connecticut, 2006

In the world of track and field, Black’s accomplishments are unparalleled – from athlete to coach to meet director to official to Master’s athlete. His career started in 1948 when he won the Rhode Island state championship in the hammer throw. After competing at Boston University, Black became the track and cross country coach at New Britain (Connecticut) High School in 1953 where his teams went 656-34-2 and claimed 28 state open and class championships in 35 years. In cross country, his teams went 315-27-1 while winning three state class championships and two state open championships.
CURT BLADT
Iowa, 2011

In 34 years as Harlan football coach through 2010, Bladt led his teams to 10 Iowa High School Athletic Association Class 3A state championships and a stellar 364-41 (.899) record – barely one loss a year. His 364 wins are No. 2 in Iowa history, although at this rate, Bladt will move up to No. 1 (391 wins) in just a few years. Off the field, Bladt has overcome the effects of Miller-Fisher Syndrome, which causes the immune system to attack nerves, and he has modeled sportsmanship – most recently in 2008 when he took 33 Harlan students to Parkersburg, Iowa, to help that community that was ravaged by an F-5 tornado.

C.H. “OKIE” BLANCHARD
Wyoming, 1984

This multi-sport coach brought home 31 state championships and 57 district titles in more than four decades. Blanchard coached football, basketball and track and was able to leave his mark at five different high schools.

PAUL McCALL
Oregon, 1982

McCall, who entered high school athletics as a coach in 1946, retired in 1980 after spending 22 years as director of athletics for Portland (Oregon) Public Schools – a system that includes 14 schools and nearly 25,000 students. McCall also gained recognition for a fund-raising drive that generated more than $230,000 from the community to offset the defeat of a school tax levy that threatened elimination of high school activities. He originated a program in conjunction with a medical association to provide injury clinics for coaches and school personnel, and encouraged the development of programs and funding for participation of girls long before Title IX.

JERRY McGEE
North Carolina, 2008

McGee was athletic director at Edenton (North Carolina) Holmes High School (1962-65) and Elizabeth City (North Carolina) Northeastern High School (1976-81) prior to serving as athletic director for the Elizabeth City-Pasquotank Public School System from 1981 to 1997. Since 1991, he has been executive director of the North Carolina Athletic Directors Association. McGee also coached four years at the high school level and 11 years at the college level (Kansas State University, Southern Illinois University, East Carolina University and Duke University). He was founder of the National Executive Directors Council, which was started in 2002 to unify the various state athletic director associations.

DOROTHY McINTYRE
Minnesota, 2003

McIntyre was a leader in expanding opportunities for girls to participate in high school sports in Minnesota. Thanks to her 32 years of service, more than 80,000 girls are competing in Minnesota. She joined the Minnesota State High School League (MSHSL) in 1970 with a task of assisting schools to develop girls sports programs. Her efforts were unparalleled and she was equally as successful with the MSHSL’s chemical-health program and coordination of the League’s officiating program. She received the NFHS Citation and was selected as one of Minnesota’s 100 Most Important Sports Figures of the Century by the Minneapolis Star Tribune.

CLAIR MUSCARO
Ohio, 2009

Muscaro retired in July 2004 after an outstanding 48-year career as a teacher, coach, assistant principal, athletic director, principal and state administrator – all in Ohio. After teaching and coaching for 11 years, Muscaro became principal of Peninsula (Ohio) Woodridge High School in 1967 and served for more than 30 years in that capacity. He then was assistant commissioner of the Ohio High School Athletic Association (OHSAA) for 5½ years before being named OHSAA commissioner in 1990. Among his accomplishments at the OHSAA, Muscaro initiated the elimination of tournament entry fees in 1992. In 1997, he started the OHSAA Foundation and initiated a scholar-athlete award program.

PAUL F. NEVERMAN
Wisconsin, 1982

Neverman served as the executive director of the Wisconsin Interscholastic Athletic Association from 1924 to 1951, and was one of the founders of the NFHS. He was particularly influential in the areas of sport safety and equipment. Neverman initiated the Wisconsin Athletic Benefit Plan, which served as the nation’s first insurance plan for athletes.

JOHN OLSON
Wisconsin, 2000

Prior to his retirement from the Madison (Wisconsin) Metropolitan School District in 1998, Olson taught science and physical education courses; served as head football coach; and served as high school athletic director, assistant principal, district administrator of athletics and assistant superintendent of the school district in a career that spanned 39 years. In addition to his very busy schedule at the local level in Madison, Olson was heavily involved with the state athletic directors association and had enormous contributions to the NFHS and the NIAAA. One of the key contributions over the years has been in the field of writing, having been published in several professional journals, including the Interscholastic Athletic Administration magazine.
H.V. PORTER
Illinois, 1982

The first full-time executive secretary of the NFHS, Porter was primarily responsible for the early development of the organization as well as the subsequent prominent position it holds today in the United States. During the 18 years he directed the NFHS (1940-58), he recodified rules in basketball, football, baseball, soccer, and track and field. His experimental work and promotion resulted in the development and legalization of a smaller, fan-shaped basketball backboard and the first molded basketball.

RUTH REHN
South Dakota, 2009

Rehn retired in 2008 after overseeing the growth of girls sports programs for the South Dakota High School Activities Association for 43 years. Since she joined the association in 1974, basketball, volleyball and cross country have been added as girls sports throughout the state. She led the effort as South Dakota was the first state to advocate the use of a smaller basketball for girls, and she assisted in the development of cheer safety guidelines. Rehn was instrumental in developing officials associations in gymnastics, basketball, football, wrestling, volleyball, competitive cheer and competitive dance. At the national level, Rehn served on numerous NFHS committees, including Volleyball Rules, Equity and Records.

JOHN ROBERTS
Wisconsin, 2000

As a high school standout, Roberts was a two-time undefeated Iowa High School Athletic Association wrestling champion at West Des Moines (Iowa) Valley High School. As a coach, he impacted the sport by starting the wrestling program at Stevens Point (Wisconsin) High School, where he coached six years and won one state title. In addition to officiating at the high school and college levels for more than 20 years, Roberts served as the executive director of the Wisconsin Interscholastic Athletic Association for 29½ years.

BERNIE SAGGAU
Iowa, 1993

As executive director of the Iowa High School Athletic Association (IHSAA) for 38 years, Saggau dedicated his life to education with primary emphasis on the rules of high school athletics and activities programs. Under Saggau’s guidance, the IHSAA has addressed many issues in student wellness and drug prevention. In 1989-90, Saggau was president of the NFHS, and later that year, he delivered the keynote address at the National Conference of High School Coaches and Officials.

DICK SCHINDLER
North Dakota, 1999

The one word that most quickly comes to mind when reviewing Dick Schindler’s outstanding 42-year career in high school athletics is “rules.” From his 13 years with the North Dakota High School Activities Association to his 18 years with the NFHS, Schindler became the country’s recognized expert in high school football and basketball rules. His greatest contributions come in his roles as a national rules interpreter and committee liaison in three sports. During his career, he coached four sports and officiated three and served as a principal.

HERMAN “BUBBA” SCOTT
Alabama, 1990

As executive director of the Alabama High School Athletic Association, Scott successfully merged Alabama’s black and white high school athletic programs during tumultuous times in the late-1960s. Scott also organized and conducted the first state football championship program, initiated a total girls athletic program in 1968, reorganized the state high school basketball championship program, and organized and conducted the first junior high school basketball championship in Alabama.

SANDRA SCOTT
New York, 2005

Scott became the first female to lead a state athletic/activity association on a full-time basis when she became executive director of the New York State Public High School Athletic Association (NYSPHSAA) in 1990. Scott helped increase fiscal control of state tournaments as well as the number of state tournaments the NYSPHSAA offered. Scott also initiated the Female Athlete Triad and Wrestling Minimum Weight Certification Program. On a national level, she served on the NFHS Field Hockey Rules Committee, NFHS Awards Committee and NFHS Equity Committee.

DON SPARKS
Missouri, 2000

From 1959 to 1976, Sparks held a variety of positions for the St. Louis (Missouri) Parkway Secondary Schools, including football, basketball and baseball coach; athletic director; and physical education director. In 1976, Sparks joined the Missouri State High School Activities Association as an assistant executive director, and two years later became the association’s first associate executive director. At the MSHSAA, Sparks served as supervisor of officials, and launched a statewide educational campaign to improve the public’s understanding of the scope and philosophy of interscholastic athletics. Sparks was an assistant director of the NFHS from 1981 to 1998. He was instrumental in starting the NFHS Officials Association and the NFHS Coaches Association.
MILT SPRUNGER
Illinois, 1983
Sprunger spent more than four decades in education and athletics, including 21 years as the assistant executive secretary of the Illinois High School Association. He covered rules changes at national meetings for the NFHS, and as a result, is viewed as the “father” of national rules interpretation meetings. He also authored a series of books and pamphlets published by the NFHS including “So Now You’re An Official.”

WAYNE TAYLOR
Florida, 2006
Taylor is a founding member of the Florida Interscholastic Athletic Administrators Association (FIAAA) and a charter member of the National Interscholastic Athletic Administrators Association (NIAAA). He served on the board of directors and as president of both organizations. He was the first FIAAA representative to serve on the Florida High School Athletic Association Board of Directors. Taylor was a high school athletic director, coach and business manager for 33 years, including 16 years at Miami (Florida) Palmetto Senior High School. Taylor received countless awards, including the NFHS Citation in 1980, and the highest NIAAA award, the Award of Merit, in 1991.

SUSAN TRUE
Kansas, 2003
In the 1980s and 1990s, no one advanced girls participation in high school sports at the national level more than Susan True. As assistant director of the NFHS for 17 years, True was a leader in girls gymnastics, volleyball, field hockey, swimming and diving, water polo and spirit. She also was vital to the start of the NFHS Equity Committee, and helped build working relationships with various national governing bodies to help their understanding of the NFHS. She served as vice president and on the board of trustees of the Women’s Sports Foundation. True was one of the organizers of the Women’s Intersport Network, which is involved in annually hosting the Girls and Women in Sports Day celebration in Kansas City.

BARBARA TWARDUS
Washington, 2001
In 1999, Twardus ended a 31-year career as a teacher, coach and administrator for the Seattle Public Schools, where she became the first female director of the Seattle School District athletic program. She also served as the first female president of the National Interscholastic Athletic Administrators Association in 1985. Twardus received numerous awards, including the WIAAA State Award of Merit in 1988 and the NIAAA Award of Merit in 1990. She was among the original class to earn Certified Athletic Administrator status.

DAN WASHBURN
Alabama, 2011
Washburn retired in 2007 after 16 years as executive director of the Alabama High School Athletic Association (AHSAA). After graduating from the University of Chattanooga, Washburn was a high school teacher and coach for 21 years, followed by eight years as superintendent of schools in Lanett, Alabama, before joining the AHSAA. Washburn was instrumental in bringing the state basketball championships – as well as the six football championships – to Birmingham. He also established the STAR Sportsmanship initiative as an eligibility requirement. Washburn served on the NFHS Board of Directors and was NFHS president in 2005-06.

SHARON WILCH
Colorado, 1998
One of the pioneers in the fight for women’s equity, Wilch had a profound effect on the course of interscholastic activities in Colorado and across the nation. A 27-year member of the Colorado High School Activities Association, Wilch was one of the first administrators in the nation to form a summit for state educators on how to effectively deal with Title IX equity issues. She also served as the chairperson for the NFHS Gymnastics Rules Committee for 15 years, which is the longest term as the head of any NFHS committee.

JOHN YOUNGBLOOD
Virginia, 1988
Youngblood coached four different sports at the high school level before serving as director of athletics at Arlington (Virginia) Washington-Lee High School and supervisor of athletics for the Arlington Public Schools. He was named Virginia’s athletic director of the year in 1975-76. Youngblood was also the founding father of and first president of the Virginia High School Athletic Directors Association. He was a member of the National Interscholastic Athletic Administrators Association (NIAAA) organizing committee, and served as NIAAA president.
OTHERS

AL BURR
Missouri, 2000

The epitome of the “student’s principal,” Burr served as a high school principal in the St. Louis area for 30 years. He was a member of the Missouri State High School Activities Association (MSHSAA) Board of Control for 12 years and was the organization’s president for one year. At the national level, Burr was president of the NFHS. He also was named one of the 60 most exemplary principals in the United States in a study by the NASP.

WILBUR CRISP
New York, 2001

Crisp was a teacher and coach at Little Falls (New York) High School who made many contributions to the sporting world. He invented the first electronic timer for amateur wrestling matches, and in basketball, Crisp introduced the electric score clock. Crisp’s other inventions include the first backwards-moving clock, the rebound and tap-in basket, adjustable baskets and personal foul flip cards.

JOHN GRIFFITH
Illinois, 1986

Griffith, who founded a magazine devoted to the coaching profession called the Athletic Journal, was the first commissioner of the Western Conference (now the Big Ten Conference). In 1909, he created the famed Drake Relays, and he was one of the organizers behind the first NCAA track and field championships held in 1921. He later served as the president and secretary-treasurer of the NCAA.

DOUG HUFF
West Virginia, 1999

Huff began his career in sports in high school as he kept statistics for New Martinsville (West Virginia) Magnolia High School. After graduating with a journalism degree from West Virginia University, Huff worked as a sports editor at two West Virginia newspapers before joining the Wheeling (West Virginia) Intelligencer in 1967. He has been there ever since, serving as sports editor since 1978. Perhaps Huff’s greatest contribution to high school sports is in the area of record-keeping on a national level. He was instrumental in the original research for the first National High School Sports Record Book.

DAVE KRIDER
Indiana, 1997

As a sportswriter covering high school sports for almost 50 years, Krider was the first newspaper journalist to be inducted into the Hall of Fame. After 30 years as sports editor of the LaPorte Herald-Argus in LaPorte, Indiana, Krider joined the staff of USA Today in 1994 as a full-time sports writer. He was associated with USA Today since its inception in 1982, having been the sole person to rate teams and select all-America teams for the paper in high school football and basketball. Krider now covers high school sports for MaxPreps. Krider interviewed many sports legends on their way up through the high school ranks. He wrote the first national stories on Magic Johnson and Patrick Ewing while both were in high school, and he later penned a cover story on Chris Webber for High School Sports Magazine.

HERMAN MASIN
New York, 1991

Known as the “Lou Gehrig” of the printing industry, Masin was editor of Scholastic Coach for more than 55 years and edited more than 550 issues without missing one. Masin’s writings and editorial skills provided coaches throughout the country with invaluable resource materials. He also provided opportunities for coaches to have their theories and coaching secrets published and shared with colleagues.

DR. VITO PERRIELLO
Virginia, 2010

Perriello, who passed away in March 2009, had a profound impact on thousands of student-athletes at many different levels. In 1971, Perriello moved to Charlottesville as a founding partner of Pediatrics Associates. By the end of his career, he was often caring for the third or fourth generation of his patients’ families. Perriello developed an expertise in attention deficit hyperactivity disorder (ADHD) as well as sports medicine. He gave lectures around the country and authored leading manuals for coaches on concussions and weight loss in wrestling. Perriello also served 11 years on the NFHS Sports Medicine Advisory Committee, including five years as chair.
MARY PRATT
Massachusetts, 1997

As an athlete, teacher, coach and official, Pratt has been one of the most important figures in the development of girls high school athletic programs for more than 60 years. Pratt was an accomplished high school athlete from 1933 to 1936, in a time when interscholastic competition was not offered to girls. She played basketball, softball, field hockey and lacrosse during her early years, often competing against boys. Following her playing career, Pratt became a high school teacher and coach, and she coached basketball, softball and soccer at the high school level. She also was a certified basketball and softball official in the 1940s. Pratt co-founded the New Agenda Northeast Women’s Hall of Fame, which annually honors women of the New England area for their athletic ability and service in the promotion of girls and women in sports.

DICK ROSETTA
Utah, 1999

Since joining the newspaper in 1963, Rosetta has served as the prep editor, sports editor, executive sports editor, columnist and feature writer at the Salt Lake City (Utah) Tribune. During that time, he has championed the benefits and values of high school athletics. He expanded the Tribune’s coverage of high school sports, and many other newspapers in the state followed his lead. Rosetta often featured those who received less attention, such as girls sports or less-successful teams.

LOUIS STOUT
Kentucky, 2006

Stout has been involved in every aspect of high school sports. A basketball standout at Cynthiana (Kentucky) High School, Stout averaged 30.9 points and 24.0 rebounds as a senior while being all-conference, all-region and all-state. He went on to coach at Lexington (Kentucky) Dunbar High School, where his teams claimed two district titles and two runner-up finishes in the regional tournament. As a baseball and softball official, Stout earned a reputation as one of the best umpires in Kentucky. In 1994 he became the first African-American to serve as the executive director of a state high school association when he was named to direct the Kentucky High School Athletic Association.

DR. THAD STANFORD
Oregon, 2004

The first person from the field of sports medicine to be inducted in the Hall of Fame, Stanford is one of the leaders in promoting health and safety to high school student-athletes. He was one of the founders of the Oregon Medical Aspects of Sports Committee and served as its chair. In 2001, Stanford was instrumental in passing Oregon legislation that required all school districts to conduct thorough pre-participation physical examinations. He was named to the NFHS Sports Medicine Advisory Committee in 1996 and served as chairman of the committee. Stanford oversaw the publication of the first and second editions of the NFHS Sports Medicine Handbook.

TIM STEVENS
North Carolina, 2007

Just the fourth journalist inducted into the Hall of Fame, Stevens has devoted his entire life to covering high school sports. He began his career as a 15-year-old with the Raleigh Times, and took a full-time post there upon graduation from Garner (North Carolina) High School. He worked at the Times until 1987, when the Raleigh News and Observer bought the Times. Since 1990, he has been the high school sports editor of the News and Observer. His PrepPlus coverage, which appears weekly, is one of the best and most in-depth high school sports sections in the country. In 1998, he received an NFHS Citation.
